Teagan Moore is three things; lovingly protective of her brother, fiercely independent of all others, and a sixteen year old genius. Unfortunately for her, this makes her an ideal target for the Company. Forced to work for the power-hungry corporate ghost, Teagan finds herself spending the summer locked in a London townhouse. Even worse, she isn't alone. Five other teenagers join her to make a specialist team at the mercy of the Company, though sometimes they seem more focused on each other than the job. Together they are thrown into the glitteringly seductive world of high-society crime, where spinning lies, breaking the law and dodging bullets are daily activities. They have one month, one task, one chance.
